

NHS Covid-19 app

Information for businesses

The new app will run alongside existing track and trace systems and will allow people to report symptoms, order a coronavirus test, check in to venues by scanning a QR code and help the NHS trace individuals that may have coronavirus.

You need to create a QR code to display in your venue for customers to scan when they visit.

If people who visit the venue test positive for coronavirus, other app users who were there at the same time may be sent an alert.

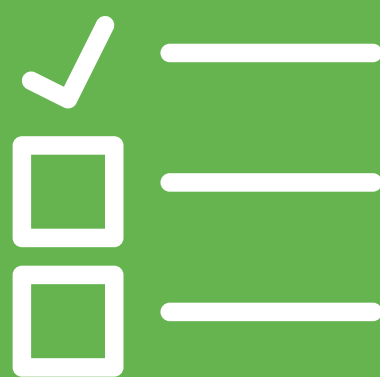

Premises which are required to collect details of staff, customers and visitors must continue to do so, including people who check in through the app.

QR code posters can be generated from the welsh government website

To get your QR code poster you'll need:

- your email address
- the address of your business
- If you have more than one venue you'll need the address and contact details for each separate venue

When you receive your QR code poster you should:

- print the poster
- display the poster somewhere visitors can see it and scan it when they arrive, such as next to the entrance
- ask visitors to scan the QR code when they arrive, using their NHS COVID-19 app
- display as many posters as you need to, to avoid queues forming

If you don't have a printer, you can show the QR code on a display screen, like a TV or tablet. Make sure it's within reach so visitors can scan it with their mobile phones.
